10 YEARS OF WOMADELAIDE

“As far as a festival goes, WOMADelaide is surely the most refined. Plenty of space, sometimes lazing under a tree with soft grass under your feet, shady trees, portaloos cleaned regularly and tasty fresh food. I loved seeing Ernest Ranglin play twice over the weekend in 1999. I thought Baaba Maal would be some kind of Gabriel-ised fake trip. It ended as a really sophisticated arena show. Great lighting and staging making the most of the natural exoticism and glamour of North African instruments and clothes. Very sophisticated and a great and assured performance, all happening in the most soft and warm South Australian night that nature could provide. In some way, WOMADelaide is a pointer to how things could be in the entertainment scene. A little care and a lot of thought and planning and the right place for the performers.”
